

Saskatchewan Forage Council Welcomes New Executive Director

The Saskatchewan Forage Council (SFC) is pleased to announce that Shannon McArton has assumed the role of Executive Director, effective immediately.

Shannon brings a strong agricultural background and extensive administrative and project management experience to the role. Her work in both the grain and livestock sectors has included communications, project and quality systems management. Shannon is a quality systems auditor in the pedigreed seed industry, and her experience with organizations such as Canadian Western Agribition, the Western Beef Development Centre and the Saskatchewan Beef Industry Conference network have allowed her to build strong networks in the beef and forage industries. She and her husband operate a grain farm near Dilke, Saskatchewan.

“The opportunity to play a role with the Saskatchewan Forage Council is an exciting one,” says McArton. “I look forward to working with the organization and its membership in support of the science and technology that is driving the industry, as well as protecting the resources that are vital to its continued health and success.”

Saskatchewan Forage Council President Tamara Carter says, “The Council is pleased to welcome Shannon as Executive Director. Her background and business experience will bring value to the organization. She is passionate about promoting agriculture and growing opportunities across the sector. We look forward to her perspective on projects and direction for the SFC.”

Shannon will operate the Saskatchewan Forage Council from her home office located near Dilke, SK. Contact information for the Saskatchewan Forage Council including mailing address, phone and fax numbers are changed, effective immediately, and can be found at www.saskforage.ca.

- 35 -

For more information, please contact:

Shannon McArton, Executive Director
Saskatchewan Forage Council
Ph 306-731-7610
office@saskforage.ca

Tamara Carter, President
Saskatchewan Forage Council
Ph 306-574-4908
tamaracarter@xplornet.com